THE FUNCTION OF EDUCATION IS TO TEACH ONE TO THINK INTENSIVELY
AND TO THINK CRITICALLY

Education since time immemorial act as a tool to promote thinking in people. Since ancient time the Gurukul system of India imparted the education to the students. It enabled the students not only to acquire textual knowledge but also to gain practical knowledge.

The 'sabha' and 'samiti' system also acted as informal means to gain knowledge as it facilitated debate discussion among the people. It was not only limited to India but also the case of ancient greek, which led to ~~presence~~ ^{raise} of great thinkers. like 'Plato', 'Aristotle', 'Buddha' and 'Mahavira', who critically analysed the environment that they were living in. And also promoted intensive thinking among their followers.

So it is evident that the function of education is "not to fill a pail but to light a fire". Because it promotes ^{one} to gain knowledge beyond formal education. ~~but~~ ^{and} also to acquire knowledge from informal sources like society, experiences and people.

Education makes a man to go beyond the 'literate' ^{meaning} and analyse the environment. It develops analysis, critical thinking, reasoning and evaluation of facts. Which develops ability to counter half truth, prejudices, stereotypes and propoganda.

Education becomes a tool to make the mind open to new experiences and analysing them. This has also helped in the evolution of mankind from the savagery to reach the civilised stage. Which also led to development of settled living and domestication of animals as well as plants. This caused community formation and development of society.

Education enable one to think intensively. That is to go beyond the standard practices and belief. It enables to critically analyse the practice that is being practices from time immemorial like sati, child marriage and practice of patriarchy.

The knowledge gained from critical thinking has helped in evolution of society from unjust to just. The critical thinking of John Locke & Rousseau laid foundation of new political system which promoted equality, liberty and justice in modern societies.

which enabled the moderates to think intensively and critically analyse the British policies. This led to new beginning in the Indian Freedom struggle that started from Dadabhai Naoroji's 'Brain of Wealth' to Mahatma Gandhi's 'satyagrah'.

Thus it is evident that critical analysis allows one to gain new perspective in life. But this can only be achieved through education that allows out of box thinking. As it acts as facilitator of more in depth analysis.

This intensive thinking has helped human to think and understand the natural phenomenon. that have contributed immensely in expanding the scientific knowledge. It ^{can} vary from how an apple fell from a tree? To why a bird flies? This steered new innovation like Airplane or physics laws which culminated into discovery of gravity.

Moreover, It has also contributed to the knowledge of climate and its impending doom. The critical knowledge gained have enabled to devising strategy to counter it. like Kyoto Protocol, Paris peace accord and many more. The intensive thinking also developed 'polluter pays principle' to reduce inequality and support climate justice.

but above all can only be achieved when education act as catalyst and not a ~~binding~~ ^{binding} force. Because if it restricts access to knowledge and information, it restricts development of critical analysis.

In George Orwell's novel of '1984' the writer talked about how by controlling the medium of education by restricting free speech, open discussion and peer review. The government was able to restrict the thought process of its citizen. Similar case is being seen in recent time where education by extremist like Jalivan and terrorist organisation have restricted the people's critical thinking about what is moral or right.

Hence it is evident that education should allow one to develop one's own thought process with positive reinforcement through right knowledge, information, which does not restrict one in the box but allow one to venture in different path and direction.

As Margaret Mead had said
"Teach a child how to think, and not what to think", this should be the motto of education to ~~develop~~ develop critical analysis in humans.

A good education allows one to develop a good character and live a virtuous life. It changes a person from mere existing to living ^{at the} fullest. Also, it enables helps to develop values of courage, wisdom and fortitude.

Therefore a education should ^{one to} develop think intensively and critically. It enables one to become a good judge of character and differentiate between good and bad. It enables to become a person with right attitude. That enables him or her to counter stereotypes, ethnocentrism, and develop tolerance and respect for others.

Analysis of facts, knowledge and available data also guide a individual to take the right decision. Whether it is for himself, society, nation or world at large.

As it is said education is the most powerful tool in the hand of human by which one can bring great change in society. So one should develop education on line of Kantian categorical imperative to achieve good for all. It has enabled to counter the narrative of racism, casteism and giving. all equal rights and status.

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS AND THE ROAD TO FAILURE ARE ALMOST ~~THE~~ EXACTLY THE SAME

Kavita and Manisha both are bright students and have achieved academic success in school. But when the time of boards came Kavita became complacent, did not follow schedule and became lazy. Whereas Manisha remained dedicated, followed a timetable and remained true to her schedule. So, when the boards came Kavita could not score good marks, while Manisha passed with flying colour.

The above case rightly represent that in life one has to bear two gain one of discipline and another of regret. As Kavita now suffers from regret because the journey of success and failure in boards was of dedication and hardwork. And the result was ~~proportional~~ ^{testament} to it

So the journey to achieve goal or reach a desired end requires the same ingredients that is dedication, discipline, perseverance, strong mental strength and hardwork. It also consist of roadblocks in the terms of internal conflicts of vice like complacency, laziness, greed overstating the values required to achieve success. And it also may consist of external forces that are beyond one control like accident, calamity and casualty.

So in this essay we will talk about how the journey is same for both success and failure. How one overcome them. If one does not overcome it then what happens. And how to achieve the said goals.

The journey or path is same for achieving the goal but it is the choices that one make alongway determine the success or failure. It also shows the adaptive capacity of a person to face the challenge. and not waver from his path. The choices that one makes is a true test of one's character, morals and values.

Firstly it can be seen in the capacity of a person to not waver from his values, morals and ability to mould itself according to the new challenges. It allows one to take necessary steps to overcome the roadblocks which can be seen in the case of India and Pakistan. Both nations were born at the same time. Had the same journey ahead of growth, development and progress. But, in one case, India took the necessary steps from green revolution, technological advancement and developing multipolar world to achieve its goal of development. Whereas Pakistan supported terrorism, military and bipolar world. The result is clear as glass. At one place, India is 5th largest economy and Pakistan is in need of IMF assistance.

Secondarily the journey also require to adapt to the new challenges that come in its pathway

The adaptation can vary from acquiring new skill, new idea and new innovation. It enables one to face new challenges with conviction.

Like in case of Apple and Blackberry both had the largest market share in 2010s. But lack of adaptability by the Blackberry towards touchscreen and the requirements of the changing time caused it to become absolute. So in this case the journey was same to do innovation, develop competitive technology but lack of change caused it to taste the dust.

Thirdly the journey also require one to get new insights, values and morals to become more resilient.

It allows one to open up, facilitating discussion, debate and disseminate to achieve inclusivity and develop tolerance.
It enables to develop cohesion among members of society.

Like in case of societies that enable and facilitate development of all, protect its minority which enabled it to become more tolerant and incidence of conflicts ~~to~~ ^{to} go down. Here the journey of peace is same that is to resolve conflict but the success and failure depends on the mechanism. It can be restricting one's custom leading to genocide as in case of Rohingya muslim or promote compassion of all. As in case of India's 'salva Dharma Sambhar'. Peaceful coexistence

So till now we have discussed how the journey's outcome depends on the adaptation, innovation that one ~~takes~~ ^{makes} along the way. which enables one to overcome the setbacks, and failures one face.

And in the end it all culminate down to the choices one make, And the principles that govern these choices. If the principle is reinforced by moral values that will decide the outcome.

Which can be choice of sacrifice and dedication by an individual to achieve the personal goal or career progression.

It enables one to be dedicated and have positive mindset even after multiple failure. because one believes in his goal. As was seen in Mahabharata. the grit and determination of Pandavas to defeat Kauravas. Who to achieve the empire used the immoral means of chanson. But in the end it ~~was~~ was the win of right over wrong.

choices is what ~~dictates~~ ^{dictates} the outcome of the journey. It enables one to venture out on different paths to achieve success. To combat the global warming people have same path to reduce green house gases and collaborating internationally.

similarly the use of scientific knowledge can also be a two edged sword. It can lead to success of mankind as whole. Though innovations like vaccine or failure of mankind by use of nuclear weapon. so path is same but the means should be ethical.

But sometimes neither the choice nor the outcome is in anyone control because of presence of external force. It can cause digression from the journey. As it is said that when we are busy planning
